"Many companies miss how participating in conferences can substantially increase their return on investment. In terms of an advertising expense, you can't beat it! You can place an ad in a newspaper, run an extensive campaign of TV and radio commercials, or go crazy with guerilla marketing... but some might see you, others not, some might pick up the phone, some not... At our event, you are face to face with potential consumers in your targeted market! They can see and examine your services, and more importantly your people get valuable time to pitch." Plus... there are some really lovely attendees who can brighten your day, whether they are old friends or potential new colleagues. It's two days of enjoyable learning.
